Case Manager Interview Questions

Case management in a healthcare setting is a cross-disciplinary practice. Your candidates will have varying specialties, and they'll come from a variety of backgrounds including nursing, social work, medicine, workers' compensation, and mental and behavioral health. The role will vary from company to company as well. The following questions function as a starting point, not a script. Feel free to add your own questions tailored to the exact working environment of the job.

For this position, a specific knowledge base is less important than the values demonstrated by your candidates. On top of clinical skills, compassion, empathy, patience, perseverance, caring, and advocacy are extremely important for this role. In addition, the role of a case manager increasingly calls for leadership and teamwork skills. This is crucial as case managers must be able to coordinate care with the patient's entire care team including physicians, specialists, hospitals, families, payers, community resources and more.

These questions are written to encourage candidates to give you as much detail as possible about their relevant knowledge, training, and expertise. The most promising candidates are thoughtful and will ask you smart, spontaneous questions of their own.
